

A letter to Jane

Dear Jane Iredale,

I am a 25 year old student teacher from British Columbia, Canada and I just wanted to let you know how much I appreciate your company for being so dedicated to providing consumers with an outstanding product that is also safe to use. It may sound a bit strange, but I feel as though I have a special relationship with these products and I'd like to share my story with you...

Two years ago, I married a wonderful man and was very excited to start a new chapter of my life. After a few months of newlywed bliss, I was diagnosed with a large tumour on my pituitary gland. Although I was told that it was benign, I was still extremely upset to find this out since it meant that my husband and I would have to postpone starting a family and I would probably need surgery to remove the tumour. The tumour caused my hormones to go completely out of wack. Doctors don't know why these tumours start growing in the first place, so I began to vigorously research everything to do with my problem. The more I researched, the more I learned about environmental toxins and their presence in our everyday lives. I was appalled when I found out how many dangerous chemicals and toxins are put into cosmetics. All the products that I was using had ingredients that included high levels of hormone disrupting chemicals, carcinogens, and other substances that contribute to organ system toxicity and reproductive issues. Since I never leave the house without makeup, I quickly realized that for the past ten years, I had been literally bathing myself in chemicals every day. After researching hundreds of cosmetics companies, Jane Iredale was the only one that consistently offered safe products. I immediately threw all my products in the garbage and replaced them with Jane Iredale products.

When I first started using Jane Iredale, I was pleasantly surprised that a little goes a long way. The products leave a gorgeous finish on the skin and I love the colour selections since it enables me to still be creative with my makeup. I have been using Jane Iredale exclusively now for over a year and half.

Just recently I had another CT scan to monitor the tumour on my pituitary and the scan revealed that it is now less than half the size that it was when I was diagnosed. My endocrinologist was completely perplexed and has never seen this happen before. I am convinced that the dramatic reduction of environmental toxins from my life has caused the my pituitary tumour to shrink. I know that by choosing Jane Iredale makeup I am getting a great product, but also investing in my personal health. I am now dedicated to spreading the word about your great products! Thank you Jane Iredale for offering a safe product that I can use with confidence.

Yours Truly,
Stephanie Gibbs
